This product has not been reviewed.Smith, like most teams in the preseason, is working without fullbacks Rob Havenstein and Matt Paradis. Both have deals that allow them to skip the practice pads. Havenstein missed Tuesday's practice, and Paradis has a limited day of work because of a sore ankle. How much Smith and the offensive line will show is unclear. They've played together in practices throughout the week, but this is their first live action. "I didn't have a great deal of contact," Smith said. Is it weird to have an unknown running back? "No," he said. "It's great. When you're playing in a game with a guy you haven't played with in a long time, you get to know.
I'm looking forward to this week." Smith has run with the starters for the most part in practice, though sometimes it's just the first unit. The Chargers' offense has been stuck in neutral for all of training camp, and Smith wants to make sure it runs smoothly. "I want to make sure that I can do my job and contribute in a way that makes us better as a football team," he said. "That doesn't necessarily mean I have to run the ball." He isn't worried about his role, but he does know he will have to block safety Larry Asante at times. "I'm happy to be in a position where I can block guys," he said. JAGUARS' FAVORITES The Jaguars have the deepest depth
